

Randy Larsen, Washington University in St. Louis, USA

Randy Larsen is a Professor at Department of Psychology at Washington University in St. Louis. He received his Ph.D. in Personality Psychology from the Department of Psychology at University of Illinois (1984). In 2006, he was listed on <http://isihighlycited.com/> among the 250 most highly cited psychologists in a 20-year period by the Institute for Scientific Information. Professor Larsen's research focuses on personality and emotion, and on how people manage their emotions both in laboratory studies and in studies of daily life and how emotions influence cognition. As principal investigator, he was awarded by many grants such as Training Grant from the National Institute of General Medical Sciences, Research Grant from the National Institute on Aging, Research Grant from the Solon E. Summerfield Foundation, Inc., etc. He has published over 80 papers in respectable scientific journals and has been an editor or a member of editorial board of many respectable journals such as Cognition and Emotion, Journal of Personality and Social psychology, Personality and Social Psychology Bulletin, Review of General Psychology, Emotion, Journal of Personality etc.

