

Denis Bratko, University of Zagreb, Croatia

Denis Bratko is a Distinguished professor at Department of Psychology, Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences in Zagreb, where he holds the position of the Head of Chair for General Psychology. His research interests include individual differences in personality and abilities, and especially genetic and environmental contributions to those differences, mostly using family and twin study design. He published over 60 scientific papers that were cited over 1500 times. In 2007, he received the National Science Award for exceptionally important scientific achievements.

